Course Description

From the SJSU course catalog: Consumer behavior determining demands for goods and services. Theory of the firm including theories of production and cost. Theory of distribution to production factors.

This course will provide a comprehensive coverage of topics related to microeconomic analysis – the part of economics focusing on the actions of individual decision-making units: individuals, households, and firms. We will learn and understand the consequences of choices made by individuals who face scarce resources and the slightly different choices made by firms in terms of determining what to produce, how to produce and how much to produce. We will also cover the market structures of perfect competition, monopoly, monopolistic competition and oligopoly and further topics in game theory and asymmetric information.

Course Format

This course will follow an in-person format where there will be regular in-person classes held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the scheduled class time. This course will also utilize the Canvas Learning Management System at <http://sjsu.instructure.com>. All students will require a reliable internet connection and an electronic device for access to Canvas LMS. You can borrow laptops and other equipment from the MLK library. Please visit the library or this website: <https://library.sjsu.edu/student-computing-services/student-computing-services>.

Classes will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays in DMH 165 from 12 to 1:15pm. Lecture materials relevant to the course will also be posted on Canvas and you will also receive weekly notifications from me. Please make sure that you check your Canvas notifications regularly.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Review the relevant economic concepts related to movements along and changes in demand and supply curves, explain and apply them graphically and mathematically in the context of the market equilibrium.
2. Review, understand and explain the different constraints that are faced by consumers and producers and the maximization choices made by them subject to those constraints; and solve numerical applications.
3. Identify features and characteristics of different market structures, both with and without market power, and be able to relate and apply those market structures to the real-life markets conditions we see today.

Required Texts

Textbook

The textbook for this course is Microeconomics, 9th edition, Pindyck & Rubinfeld, Pearson. Course lectures will be based on this textbook.

Other Readings

All and any remaining reading and lecture materials will be posted on Canvas.

Course Requirements and Assignments

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practical. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.

The course grading/assessment will be based on the following:

1. Quizzes assigned regularly on Canvas
2. One midterm examination
3. 2 - 3 homework assignments (take home problem sets)
4. One final exam (as per the SJSU Final Exams schedule)
5. Participation in all class discussions, or via any questions, surveys, or discussions posted online in Canvas

The expectation from me is that you will attend classes, review the lecture materials and the readings for each week, come and talk to me if you have any issues/doubts and then complete any homework assignments and any quizzes that I might assign.

Final Examination or Evaluation

The final evaluation for this course will be a final examination taking place during the Final Examinations week as per the SJSU Fall 2023 schedule, which will be the culminating activity based on the course material covered in the semester. Details regarding the final exam will be announced ahead of time in class and on Canvas.

SJSU Land Acknowledgement:

San José State University and Surrounding Region Thámien Ancestral Muwekma Ohlone Territory.

The San José State University community recognizes that the present-day Muwekma Ohlone Tribe, with an enrolled Bureau of Indian Affairs documented membership of over 550, is comprised of all of the known surviving American Indian lineages aboriginal to the San Francisco Bay region who trace their ancestry through the Missions Santa Clara, San José, and Dolores, during the advent of the Hispano- European empire into Alta California; and who are the successors and living members of the sovereign, historic, previously Federally Recognized Verona Band of Alameda County.

Furthermore, the San José State University community recognizes that the university is established within the Thámien Ohlone-speaking tribal ethnohistoric territory, which based upon the unratified federal treaties of 1851-1852, includes the unceded ancestral lands of the Muwekma Ohlone Tribe of the San Francisco Bay Area. Some of the enrolled Muwekma lineages are descended from direct ancestors from the Thámien Ohlone tribal territory whose ancestors had affiliation with Mission Santa Clara.

The San José State University community also recognizes the importance of this land to the indigenous Muwekma Ohlone people of this region, and consistent with our principles of community and diversity strives to be good stewards on behalf of the Muwekma Ohlone Tribe whose land we occupy.
