

PSYCHOLOGY 298 – SPECIAL PROBLEMS

Student Name: _____ SJSU ID: _____

Student E-Mail: _____

Semester/Year: _____ # of Units: _____

Overview

Special Problems (Psyc 298) represents an opportunity to conduct advanced work in areas not covered in any regular course offering. Check with your faculty sponsor to determine the correct number of units for which you should register. As a rough estimate, three (3) units would be equal to eight hours of effort per week. Note that while a maximum of six (6) units of PSYC 298 and 299 can be included on the candidacy form, the total number taken is not restricted.

Credit will not be given for community volunteer work or fieldwork

A. Brief description of the project (scope and purpose):

Note: Before collection of data from human or non-human subjects, prior approval must be granted by the Institutional Review Board or the Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee.
